Investigation and Intervention of Family and Domestic Violence

Length of Seminar: 2.5 Days
August 27, 28 & 29 2018 or September 25, 26 & 27 2018
Instructor: Mike J. Coker

Course Overview:

The 3.5 million violent crimes committed against family members between 1998 and 2002 accounted for 11 percent of all reported violence, and nearly 22 percent of murders in 2002 were within families. Domestic violence includes not only intimate partner relationships, but also family, elder and child abuse. Although laws regarding domestic abuse have changed over the past century, the spirit of the law remains ambivalent, reflecting the mixed feelings of many in our society. There is greater pressure on police and social services agencies to treat domestic assaults as seriously as they treat other assaults.

This course will deepen law enforcement officers’ understanding of all types of domestic violence, assisting them in dealing with domestic violence calls and ways to increase the likelihood that offenders will be prosecuted successfully. In addition to physical violence, participants will gain an understanding of emotional and psychological abuse.

Upon Completion:
Participants will be able to:

• Understand the theories and dynamics of domestic violence calls
• Identify different roles of service providers
• Provide proven on-scene techniques for successful prosecution
• Recognize the three phases of violence
• Understand why a pro-arrest policy can reduce domestic violence homicides
• Grasp the importance of case preparation for trial
• Identify the role of social services agencies in child abuse cases
• Explain how stalking impacts domestic homicides
